The Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff.
Makes hair soft and fluffy. Stops itching of the scalp.

DON'T BLAME YOUR MIRROR

Many ladies compel their mirrors to bear silent witness to needless hair destruction. Day after day they see the beauty and attractiveness spoiled by the removal of great combfuls of slightly diseased hair that could be saved. If your mirror could talk it would plead with you to "save your hair—not the combings." It can be done with Newbro's Herpicide which eradicates the contagion that causes dull, brittle and lusterless hair, aiso dandruff and falling hair. Correct this and the hair's natural luster and abundance will return. Almost extraordinary results. An exquisite hair dressing.

Send 10 cents in stamps to The Herpicide Company, Dept. 1078, Detroit, Michigan, for sample and booklet.

Two Sizes—50 cents and $1.00. Sold and guaranteed at all Toilet Goods Counters. When you call for Herpicide, do not accept a substitute. Applications at prominent Barber Shops.

SCHOOL INSPECTION AND CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

"Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 28, '14. Editor Ogden Standard. Dear Sir: Knowing that the columns of your paper are open to anything that is of general interest to the large number of newspaper readers, I feel sure that you will grant space for the following item of interest to parents and taxpayers:

The rapid increase in the cost of school inspection throughout the republic is alarming many citizens who view with some concern the systematic effort of organized medical interests to fasten an ever-increasing army of salaries officials on municipal, state and national government. School inspection, according to these people, affords a case in point, and attention is called to the fact that the health authorities of New York are asking for $564,870 for school inspection for the next year, which is $123,750 more than the appropriation for 1914.

School inspection is said to be in its infancy. Its introduction was secured in most instances on the plea that it would enable the health authorities to stamp out or reduce to a minimum common contagious diseases which were annually causing the needless death of a great number of children. It was plausibly urged that the schools were the centers for the spread of contagion, and that medical examination would probably detect these diseases and reduce them to a minimum.

Accepting these claims, great cities like New York and Chicago introduced compulsory inspection; yet the vital statistics of these cities, during recent years, since the introduction of this innovation, seem to sustain the charge that inspection has signally failed to accomplish the promised results. In New York, for example, official tables for diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox, whooping-cough, croup and mumps, from 1903 to 1912, inclusive, show that in the first named year these cases aggregated 49,074. Every succeeding year shows an increase over these figures, until 1912, when the total number of cases was $1,116.

In Chicago, according to the official tables for these diseases during the past six years, the cases in 1906 aggregated 20,242. Every succeeding year shows a steady and marked increase in these figures, until 1913, when the cases aggregated 38,039.

In these cities, notwithstanding the annual appropriation for inspection, contagious diseases were not reduced to a minimum, as promised, rather was there a steady increase, greater than could be reasonably expected from the increase of population; and this is all the more surprising in view of the steadily improved sanitary conditions of city life.

Thanking you, I am very truly yours (Signed), HENRY A. TEASDEL.

CHAS. ROOT HELD NOT TO BE GUILTY OF WRONG DOING

Municipal Judge William H. Reeder rendered a decision of no cause for action in the case of the State of Utah vs. Charles Root. Root was given a preliminary hearing in the municipal court Tuesday on a statutory charge, the complaining witness being Karina Green, a 14-year-old girl.

In rendering his decision, the judge stated that there was no basis to the allegations made by the complaining witness and ordered Root's release from the county jail. With reference to the filing of the charge, the judge stated that he thought it was the outcome of ill feeling on the part of Mrs. Green toward the defendant.

County Attorney Jensen after the dismissal of the case, said that he would not have filed the charge had he understood that the evidence given on the stand was to have been presented.

INTERURBAN LINE TO MEETING HELD AT THE CENTRAL JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL BE EXTENDED TO PRESTON, IDAHO

On the heels of the completion of the Ogden, Logan and Idaho Railway company's new interurban line from Smithfield to Lewiston, comes the last big announcement the company will make this year—the decision to immediately extend the interurban from Lewiston to Preston, Idaho.

The news of the decision is out and confirmed by General Manager P. D. Kline of the interurban company, and work has already progressed on grading for the Lewiston-Preston extension two miles north of Lewiston.

The decision of the officers and directors of the Ogden, Logan and Idaho Railway company to build the Lewiston-Preston extension immediately came as a big surprise to even those in closest touch with the affairs of the company. With scores of sections of the east and west crying "business depressions," it is thoroughly indicative of the solidity and condition of business throughout this section of Utah, to learn that the interests in control of the Ogden, Logan and Idaho Railway company have decided to go right ahead with the expenditure of at least $200,000 in construction of the extension to Preston in the immediate future.

This extension will make the interurban from Wellsville to Preston one of the longest, finest and most modern to be found in any eastern or western state. Work is already under way on the grading for the extension and has progressed two miles north of Lewiston. There is considerable heavy grading to be done the rest of the way, and the work will require six weeks. All of the track-ages and overhead material necessary for the construction of the entire extension has been ordered, and much of it is en route.

If all goes well, the entire interurban from Wellsville to Preston will be in operation some time between March 1st and 15th.

Word has just been received from General Manager P. D. Kline of the company that the completed interurban between Wellsville and Lewiston cannot possibly be opened for traffic on Thursday, December 10, as was announced last week by the officials of the company.

The latter are in receipt of telegraphic advice from the American Car company of St. Louis, manufacturers of the big all-steel electric interurban cars to be used on the new line, stating that the shipment of these three cars was unavoidably delayed, and that they cannot possibly reach Logan in time to go into operation on the line Thursday, December 10.

It will require probably 10 days more for the cars to reach the new line and be placed in commission. The formal opening of the road from Wellsville to Lewiston will, therefore, be delayed to about December 20. Definite announcement of the formal date for the opening of the line will be made by the officials of the company at the earliest possible moment, after they receive definite advice as to the time of arrival of the new cars.

The entire track from Wellsville to Lewiston is complete and ready for the new cars. The work at Merrill's spur is finished, and the heavy grade work encountered just out of the sugar factory, this side of Lewiston, is progressing rapidly, under the operations of a steam shovel. Until this difficult cut is made, however, and the permanent track is laid through it, the company will use a temporary track around the grade cut.

The construction of the road from Lewiston to Preston will involve the erection of big car repair shops at Preston, together with a handsome and modern brick building to be used as freight depot, passenger station, and quarters for the operator.

What is of more importance to Preston, however, is the fact that the coming of the new road will mean the addition of 25 or 30 families to the town's population.

In running from Lewiston to Preston, the new interurban will pass directly through Fairview and about a half mile from Whitney.

A Parents' and Teachers' association was organized at the Central Junior high school last night, with about 200 parents and teachers of Central Junior students as charter members. The officers elected were: Judge J. A. Howell, president; Dr. G. W. Baker, vice president; and H. Adams, secretary. Judge N. J. Harris was appointed to represent the organization on the general committee on bylaws and constitution. He is to confer with the representatives of the other associations within a few days, for the purpose of drafting the bylaws and constitution to govern all of the associations.

Superintendent J. M. Mills addressed the meeting on the phase of the social center plan, relating to the bringing of parents and teachers into closer acquaintanceship for the general benefit of the children in the school. The whole purpose of the associations, he said, was for the welfare of the children and it was his sincere belief that the schools would become more efficient when the full significance of the organizations was realized.

During the evening a girls' chorus of 16 voices, under the direction of Mrs. Irene Keane, sang several choral selections in an excellent manner and a violin duet was played by Mary Fisher and Herman Meissner, with piano accompaniment by Artilla Pickett. The music was appreciated by all present.

After the meeting was concluded, a girls' physical culture class, under the direction of Mrs. Keane, gave an interesting exhibition of the folk dancing that is being taught in the schools. The art, domestic science and manual training departments of the school were inspected by the parents and much admiration was expressed for the work that was being done by the students.

PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL GUARDING AGAINST SCANDAL

The weekly meeting of the city board of education was held last night, accounts and minor requests for supplies from the different school principals occupying the major portion of the time.

One of the requests was from Principal J. E. Beeson of the high school, for a new system of locks for that school. In connection with the request, Mr. Beeson said:

"We need a complete change in the lock system of the high school in order to protect property as well as to protect its reputation—possibly to prevent scandal."

During the discussion on the matter, it was stated that new locks and keys would be needed for both the inside and outside doors and that the cost of making the change would be about $450. According to the plan suggested, the principal and janitor would have a master key, similar to that used in large hotels and office buildings. The question of making the change was not finally passed upon.

Superintendent J. M. Mills gave a brief talk on the opening of the Lewis school as a social center and of the organizing of parents' and teachers' associations in different parts of the city. These associations, he stated, had been organized in the Quincy, Panguitch, Washington, Grant, Madison and Lewis school districts, up to the time of the board meeting, and similar ones were to be organized in the Mound Fort, Five Points, Lorin Farr, Dee, Central and Ogden high school districts.

COMMITTEE OF BOYS TO SPEAK ON THE MILITARY DRILL

At the regular meeting of the Economic Study club, Mrs. Mae Kerns read a paper on labor in the middle ages, in part as follows:

"History is to the race what experience is to the individual. Without it there can be no correct or timely interpretation of today's events."

"History is a record of class struggle punctuated by revolutions which mark different stages of economic development. Threatened by serfs driven to revolt by starvation cruelty and oppression and by a church thirsting for economic power, the feudal lords welcomed the crusades as a means to the end of the revolutionary serf population."

"The serfs were led into the desert without food or water. Large numbers perished or were murdered by the troops which accompanied them on the 'holy' expedition."

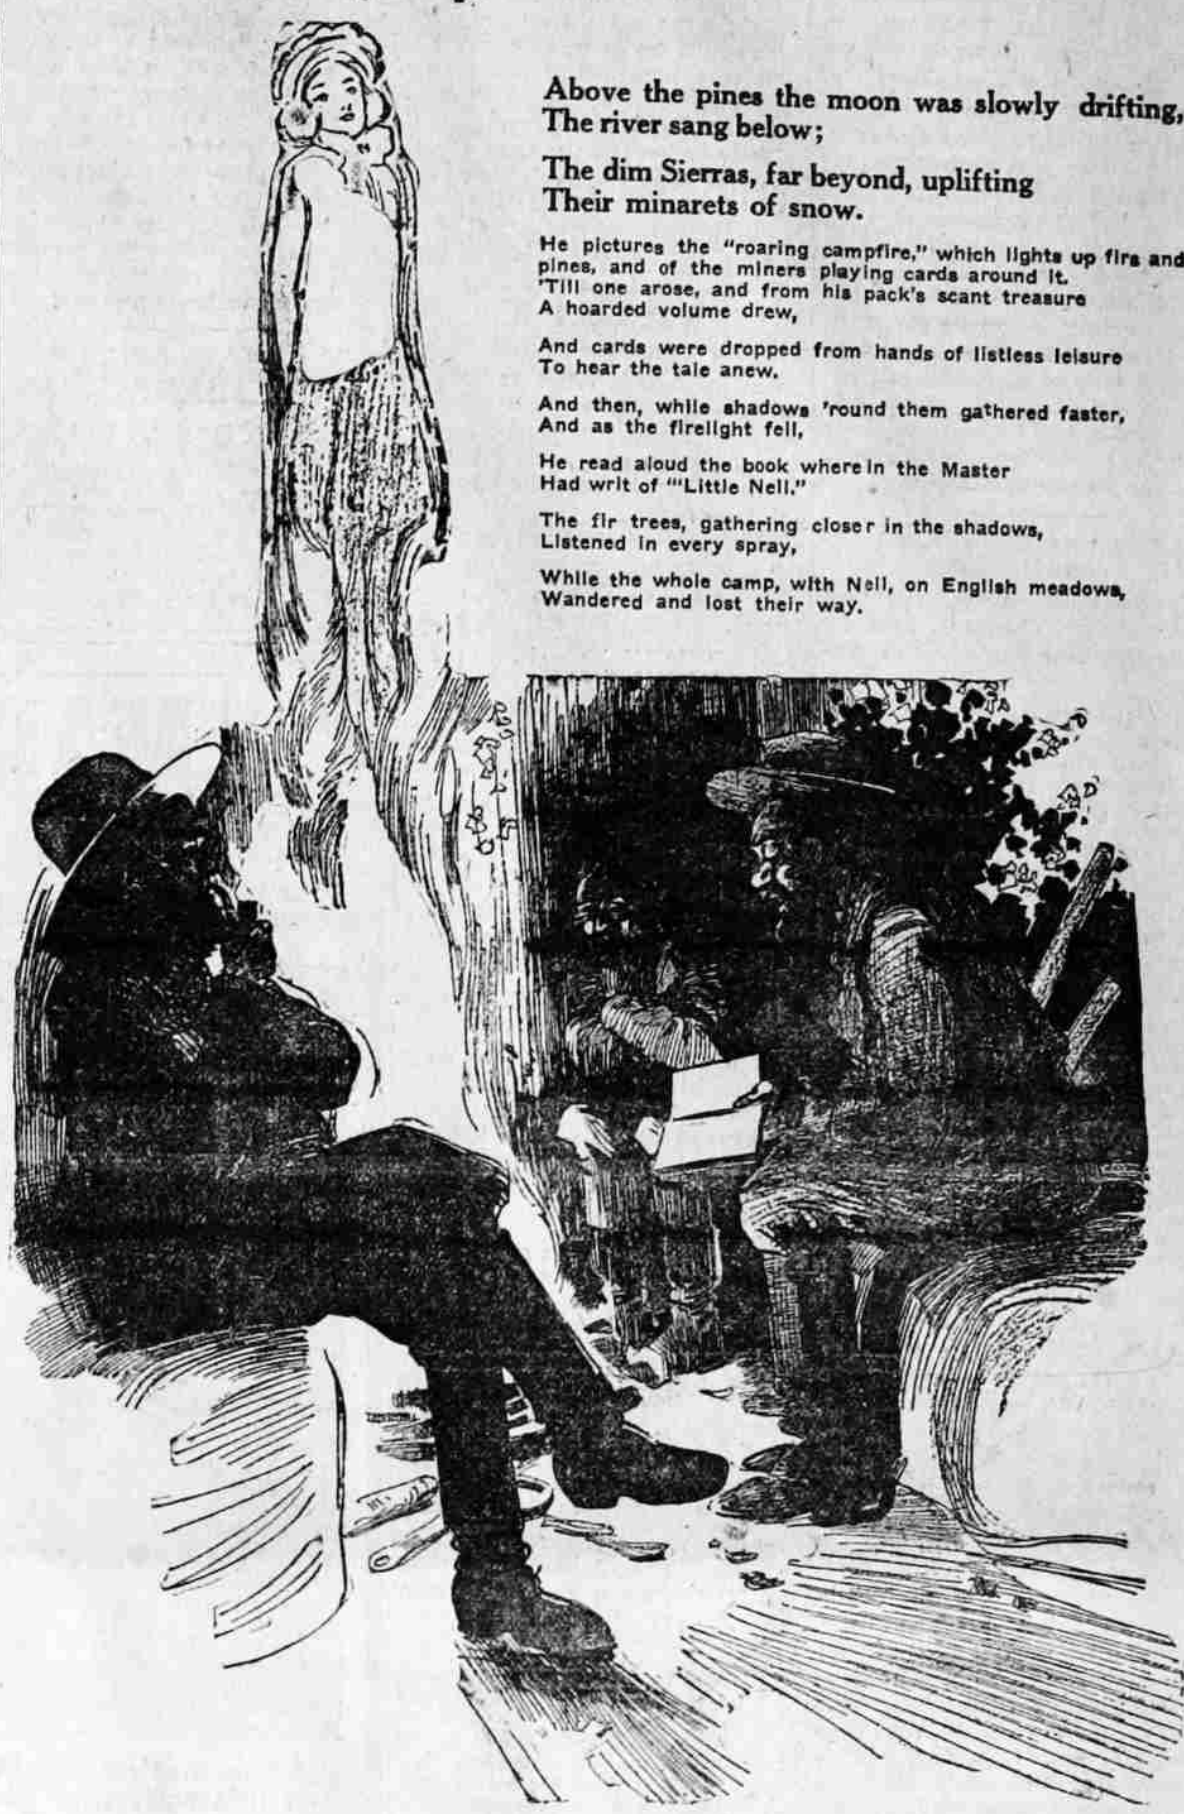

"War, now raging in Europe, is the modern crusade against the poorly paid and the unemployed whose increasing numbers and desperate straits in the several countries forced to a conclusion the policy of rule or ruin which dominates every ruling class the world has ever seen."

The next meeting will be on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, at 326 Hudson building. A paper will be given on the "Industrial Revolution in America," and under the head of "Current Events," a committee of boys from the high school will speak on "Compulsory Military Drill." Those interested are welcome.

Watch for "St. Elmo," coming soon to the globe.

Bret Harte's Tribute to Dickens

Some appreciation of Dickens' universal appeal can be had from Bret Harte's famous lines: "Dickens in Camp." Harte tells the story of a California mining camp.

Above the pines the moon was slowly drifting,
The river sang below;

The dim Sierras, far beyond, uplifting
Their minarets of snow.

He pictures the "roaring campfire," which lights up fire and pines, and of the miners playing cards around it. "Till one arose, and from his pack's scant treasure A hoarded volume drew,

And cards were dropped from hands of listless leisure To hear the tale anew.

And then, while shadows 'round them gathered faster, And as the firelight fell,

He read aloud the book where in the Master Had writ of "Little Nell."

The fir trees, gathering closer in the shadows, Listened in every spray,

While the whole camp, with Nell, on English meadows, Wandered and lost their way.

"The Master's" stories are delighting thousands in every corner of the earth. "Old Curiosity Shop," the one Harte refers here, is to be found in the Famous Authors set of Dickens which is offered you by this newspaper now, through a special arrangement with the publishers, at $1.30 for the whole set, prepaid to you.
